

INVITING SPEAKERS

Including guest speakers who can offer non-partisan, issue-area expertise will help provide data and trend information to frame your discussions. Possible speakers from within your own community include: university/higher education professors; fiscal officers from cities, counties, or schools; local columnists or authors; and Assembly or Senate district staff. The following list of speakers participated at the Local Government Summit on State Governance and Fiscal Reform in July 2009 and is offered as a starting point for your agenda.
